Amnesty - Missing Dyson Vacuum Cleaner from Physical Computing Lab
A vacuum cleaner has gone missing from the Pcomp lab in B502 at Peckham Road.
Please contact me privately to organise returning it, otherwise we'll have to access the CCTV footage and ID card logs from the camera that points right at it.
If you return it before the end of the week there will be no need to take further action.
- Monday, 4 September

Introducing Etherpad...
After a lot of requests, we've been able to launch Etherpad at pad.arts.ac.uk, this is a public, collaborative text and code editing platform, that's hosted for free to UAL students and staff, but it can be used by anyone outside too.
This is with much thanks to @Paul and the Teaching and Learning team at UAL for helping to push this through, if you have any support questions please post in #technical and we'll do our best to help out.
If you have any feedback about this new service please feel free to share that with myself and Paul in an email, Teams or Slack DM so we can share with others how it's being used.
Note: Pads are automatically deleted after 47304000 seconds (47304000 / 60 / 60 / 24 / 365 = 1.5 years) of no activity.

At the bottom of the channel, it says 'Only certain people can post in this channel.' with a 'Learn more' link.
